GEORGE REMUS LOOKING FOR THRILLS

BOOTLEG KING TESTIFIES IN BIG LIQUOR CONSPIRACY

Wife Is Discharged As Defendant to Permit Ex-Convict to Aid Government—
Remus Banked $2,800,000
In Eleven months—Grilled
Concerning Charges Before Senate Investigators
—Heavy Guard On Duty
In Court Room.

Deserting a lucrative law practice in Illinois to engage in the liquor traffic for the thrill that it gave was the story told by George Remus, reputed millionaire bootleg king, when placed on the witness stand in Indianapolis as the star witness for the government in the St. Louis liquor conspiracy cases.

Mrs. Imogene Remus, who during the trial has attracted more interest than anyone else in the court room, was discharged when her attorney objected to the testimony of George Remus when the latter took the witness stand.

The government discharged Mrs. Remus under the rule preventing testimony of husband against wife. "We object to Mr. Remus testifying on the ground that as her husband he is incompetent as a witness."

"We feel," said the district attorney, "that there is too much question about this point to permit such an objection going in the records and for that reason the government moves to nolle prosequere the case as to Mrs. Imogene Remus."

Remus proved an interesting witness and handled himself with deliberations and composure, except once during the cross examination by Wayne Ely, one of the defense attorneys.

Remus was uneasy when asked about being barred from practice in Illinois courts as an attorney and as to his law practice previous to entering the liquor business.

That he banked a fortune in the Lincoln National bank of Cincinnati in the short period of 11 months was brought out.

"Did you do business with the Lincoln National bank of Cincinnati?" Ely asked in the cross examination.

"I did," Remus replied.

"Is it true that you deposited $2,800,000 in that bank in a period of 11 months?" Ely asked.

"Yes, it is true," Remus answered.

"When did you get into the whisky business?" the defense asked.

"Shortly after national prohibition became effective," he replied.

"Were you a practicing lawyer prior to that time?" Ely asked.

"I was, but when I decided to go into the liquor business I closed my office and my secretary and stenographer handled 715 cases of mine which remained uncompleted," Remus said.

"Do you drink?" Ely asked.

"Emphatically no. I entered the liquor business after forsaking my law practice only for the thrill and excitement," Remus said.

Remus then upon cross examination admitted that he owned the Squibbs distillery and the Greensdale distillery at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, and either owned distilleries or controlling stock in a number of other places.

Attorneys for the defense tried to have Remus admit that he had been influenced to testify by hope of immunity from prosecution in the St. Louis case, which preceded the one here.

Ely asked Remus if he did not testify to one thing before the Daugherty investigating committee at Washington and then repudiate his testimony at the Atlanta, Georgia, prison.

Remus admitted he had repudiated the first testimony in a statement made before a notary public.

The court room bristled with guards as Remus took the stand. A department of justice agent walked with him to the witness chair, and as he sat down, three other federal agents stood in the court room.

Threats, it is said, had been made "to get Remus, when he testified."

The bootleg "king" showed little nervousness. He sat in the chair with his legs crossed and with a self important air. He said he aided in obtaining money to buy the Jack Daniel distillery.

Remus said the deal was negotiated June 26, 1923, and that he and his associates paid $125,000 for the plant.

Remus testified that in the disposal of liquor withdrawn from the distillery it was necessary to set aside certain sums from the profits to pay for protection. He said $12 a case was set aside to pay for any help received from men in the internal revenue department and from "other friends of Kratz."

Likewise, he said $3 a case was set aside to pay William J. Kinney, deputy gauger at the distillery.

Remus told, too, of arrangements being made to buy alcohol for use in connection with the whisky. He said alcohol was used to replace whisky taken from the barrels, in order to make the bulk of content and the alcoholic contents up to the standard.

SCHOLARSHIP PRIZES.

An invitation to enter the second annual State High School Extremepore Speaking contest to be held by the department of oratory at Ohio Wesleyan university in Delaware in April has been extended to Circleville, Jackson, Pickaway and Walnut rural high schools. Scholarship prizes totaling $465 will be awarded to the students who are successful in the contest and to the winning high school.

POSTMAN NEEDS AID

Uncle Sam's mail carriers will enjoy Christmas day free from work, as there will be no deliveries that day. The public is asked to do its Christmas mailing early so the postman can do his work with comparative ease.

A GOOD NEWSPAPER.

The Williamsport News, edited by Fred L. Tipton came out this week with a fine illustrated Christmas cover. The edition consists of twelve pages and gives a splendid account of the fiftieth anniversary of Heber lodge F. & A. M., which was celebrated December 15. It also prints the history of the lodge prepared and delivered by Captain William B. Davis, its first worshipful master.

DEATH OF BABY

CITY COUNCIL CONSIDERING GAS PROBLEM

Circleville Township Trustees to Assist in Repairing The Road at River Bridge.

The city council met in regular session Wednesday evening, December 16, with President John C. Goeller, presiding and all members present.

Mr. Shane, as chairman of the committee consisting of all the members of council to whom had been referred the ordinance regulating the price to be charged for natural gas, reported that the committee was not ready to report and asked for further time, which was granted.

Service Director Schneider reported that the trustees of Circleville township were willing to assist him in repairing the road between the River bridge and the plant of the Ohio utilities company. Mr. C. A. Leist reported that a hearing upon the tentative valuation of the Pickaway Water company's plant will be heard before the public utilities commission on January 6, and asked the pleasure of council as to the further employment of himself and Judge Charles Dresbach to represent the city in this matter. After a discussion of this matter it was the desire of council that these attorneys continue to assist in coming City Solicitor Weldon.

Cleveland—Suit for an injunction to restrain nine northern Ohio counties from collecting taxes aggregating $556,649.14, was filed in federal court here Wednesday by the Northern Ohio Traction company which characterized the operation of the counties tax laws as "unfair."

The counties are Tuscarawas, Noble Stark, Cuyahoga, Summit, Medina, Portage and Wayne.

Bellaire—The Ohio state branch of the United Mine Workers will not hold a convention next year in view of the fact that the Jacksonville agreement under which the miners are working does not expire until 1927, it was learned Wednesday.

An additional reason given, it was understood, was the financial burden incurred by the convention which took several hundred delegates to Columbus annually.

Youngstown—Yeggmen dynamited the safe at the Wilkins-Leonard Hardware company store here early today and escaped with between $800 and $1,000. The Woolworth store, adjoining, was also entered but nothing of value was obtained.

Columbus—Appointment of Dr. W. B. Merrill, Columbus, to succeed Dr. C. Lawrence Perry as chief physician at the state penitentiary here was announced by Warden P. E. Thomas. Dr. Perry has resigned to attend to business interests in Florida, Thomas said.

Cleveland—Firemen Frank Svoda carried Frank Tijgwaski, a 12 year old invalid, to safety when fire destroyed the Tijgwaski home Wednesday. The boy was forgotten by his parents in the panic accompanying the blaze.

Ashtabula—Fire swept five buildings in Brownsville, a village 20 miles south of here Wednesday.

A general store, a hotel, a garage and two residences comprising practically all the buildings in the town, were burned.

Damage was estimated at $40,000. The Ashtabula fire department responded to the alarm but arrived too late to extend aid.

PARALYSIS

Caused Death of Mrs. George E. Dresbach—Funeral Services Saturday.

Mrs. Julia A. Dresbach, widow of George E. Dresbach, died at her home 464 East Main street at 5:45 o'clock this morning. She had been ill ten weeks and her death was due to paralysis.

The deceased was born in Salt Creek township, November 14, 1849, and was a daughter of William and Mary Reichelderfer Parcells. She was married to George E. Dresbach, December 24, 1871, who died January 7, 1910.

Mrs. Dresbach had been a resident of this city for the past five years.

Six sons and one daughter survive. Two daughters, Misses Mary and Mabel Dresbach, died some years ago.

The living children are Mrs. Fannie Stage, of Columbus; Emanuel Dresbach, Louis Dresbach and George Snow Dresbach, of this city; Pearl Dresbach of Dunkirk, Indiana; Homer Dresbach, of Chalmers, Indiana, and Delano Dresbach of Muncie, Indiana. She also leaves thirteen grandchildren. Mrs. Dresbach was the last of a family of seven children. She was affiliated with the United Brethren church.

The funeral services will be held from her late home Saturday afternoon at two o'clock conducted by Rev. George Weir, assisted by Rev. M. R. White of Lucasville. Interment in the Dresbach cemetery. The pallbearers will be her six sons.

TO WELFARE HOME.

Alice Hoffman, the four weeks' old daughter of Bessie Hoffman, who was made a ward of the court was delivered to the Children's Welfare society in charge of Dr. and Mrs. Darby at Columbus.

ADELPHIANS PLANNING FOR WEEKLY PAPER

Border News is Moved to Laurelville—Watchman
May Establish Journal.

Adelphi will have a paper to replace the Border News, which last week moved its plant to Laurelville.

At a meeting held in the Knights of Pythias hall Tuesday night, arranged by the representatives of the News-Advertiser, merchants, professional men and the town council gathered and discussed the situation.

Mr. Johnson, son of J. W. Johnson, publisher of the Circleville Watchman and the Kingston Tribune was present and offered to come into the town with a weekly Adelphi newspaper.

The meeting enthusiastically endorsed Mr. Johnson's plan of entering the town and offered all the financial support necessary to bring the plans to a realization.

The town was considerably wrought up over the idea of being without a weekly paper of its own and the meeting was attended by the entire group of merchants and professional men in the village.

Thru the efforts of a representative of the News-Advertiser the meeting was made possible.

A mass meeting has been called for Thursday night at the Knights of Pythias hall and every citizen in or near the village of Adelphi has been urged to be present. The meeting will be called at 7:30.

At this time plans for the installation of the new plant and its probable cost will be laid before the people of the village and definite action will be taken.—News-Advertiser.

New Religions in Russia

In Kobryn, Poland, and in neighboring localities a new religious movement is developing among the Jews. They are said to be breaking away from the orthodox Jewish church and are being baptized as Protestants. Long curls are being cut off and black robes are being exchanged for European dress. Last month 142 Jews, in Kobryn, were baptized as Protestants. Some observers speak of it as a mass desertion from the Jewish faith. Another movement is in the form of a new religion, which resembles communism, but is more like a free-thinking sect. Many members of this sect receive liberal funds from America. Both ideas seem to have come from over the Russian frontier. In both Russia and eastern Poland Baptists are making converts, mostly among Ukrainians and White Russians. In Yugo-Slavia a new and strange sect was discovered recently. It was headed by a German, Otto Webb. Gendarmes arrested Webb and his eight converts. He was teaching resistance to compulsory military service, and refusal to use arms. Pacifism the Serbs look upon with deep suspicion.

Plants Useful During War

Among the ingenious uses to which plants were put during the World war were: Sphagnum moss, dressing for wounds; charcoal from fruit pits used for gas masks; birch and willow pulp, used as a substitute for cotton and the nettle for making textiles; meal obtained from clover, horse chestnuts, oats, Indian corn, barley, beans, peas and buckwheat, used in place of flour; roasted barley and oats and roasted acorns and beech-nuts, substitute for coffee; In Germany eventually a substitute for coffee was made from carrots and yellow turnips; bloom of the Linden tree mixed with beech buds was found to make an excellent beverage; roasted peas and oats, a substitute for cocoa.

Summer Ice 3 Feet ThickForms in Adirondacks

Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Water in the crevices of Indian pass has formed ice more than two feet thick, according to Albert Tebeau, forest ranger.

Tebeau made a detailed report of this unusual condition when he visited the offices of District Forest Ranger James H. Hopkins here.

The discovery, according to Tebeau, was made when he was with a party of workmen repairing the telephone lines at a fire-observation station near Indian pass. A large object, at first believed to be a stone, fell near the workmen. When the moss was removed it was found to be ice. Tebeau then scaled the rocks and found ice in almost every crevice. Some of it, he declared, was three feet thick. Conservation officials say this is the first time ice has formed in the Adirondacks in July.

A TREMENDOUS PRICE REDUCTION

On January seventh, nineteen twenty-six, Dodge Brothers Incorporated, will announce a tremendous reduction in the prices of their complete line of motor cars.

These reductions will apply on all cars bought after midnight December fifteenth, nineteen twenty-five.

When the new prices are made known on January seventh the full amount of the reduction will be immediately refunded to all purchasers since December fifteenth.

These revolutionary reductions are made possible by a recently completed ten million dollar expansion program---new buildings and equipment that will nearly double the capacity of Dodge Brothers factories in nineteen twenty-six.

There is no change in the policy upon which Dodge Brothers established their leadership eleven years ago---the policy of constant improvment without yearly models.

AMUSEMENTS

The James Cruze-Paramount production, "Welcome Home," which opened at the Metropolitan theater yesterday, is a nice, smooth, natural piece—no sex or triangle stuff—just a study of the little problems of daily life at times intensified to near tragedy, trailing into a humor as whimsical and impersonal as life, with very little reason and not much rhyme—just an effort to add a little more to the gaiety of this sad world.

"Welcome Home" was adapted for the screen by Walter Woods and F. McGrew Willis from a stage play by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman. Featured in the principal roles are Lois Wilson, Warner Baxter and Luke Cosgrave.

Cosgrave has the role of an old widower who comes to the city to live with his married son and daughter-in-law. He does not realize it, but with his arrival everything in the house starts to go wrong. The maid leaves when she is asked to give up her room to the old fellow. Everything old man Prouty turns his hand to ends disastrously.

Finally Miss Wilson, playing Nettie Prouty, can stand it no longer, and she tells Fred Baxter that he will have to make a choice between her and his father. Both of them cannot remain under the same roof. There is the usual family quarrel, followed by the usual declaration of peace.

The old gent gets it into his head that he will be far more free at a home where he has many cronies. So he packs his bag and leaves and quiet once more holds sway in the Prouty household.

After "The Goose Hangs High" there isn't a doubt about the interest and heart appeal Cruze can crowd into a story—and here's a screen version of a popular stage play by the author of "So Big" and the man who, with Marc Connelly, wrote "Merton of the Movies" and "The Beggar on Horseback."

Appearing in the cast of "Welcome Home" are such well known names as Ben Hendricks, Jr., Josephine Crowell and Adele Watson.

ARE INJURED

Barberton, O., Dec. 16, (UP).—Authorities today were investigating a grade crossing crash near here last night in which a girl was killed and two women and a man were seriously injured.
Miss Lois Gurth, 17, Canal Fulton, was killed.
The injured were Mrs. John Goshorn 37; Mrs. Minnie Stottler, 68, and Harry Nelson, who was driving the car.
The injured were brought to a hospital here. Nelson said he did not see the approaching train until it was almost upon him. The car was demolished.

And Some Gaped
The new clergyman was anxious about his first sermon, for it was important that it make a good impression. "Do you think they liked it, my dear?" he asked his wife. "Yes, I think so," she replied. "I noticed that many of them were nodding assent to what you said."

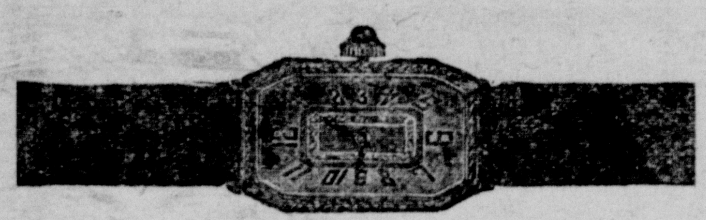

Worth Finally Recognized
Millet's famous painting, "The Angelus" representing two peasants saying the Angelus in the evening twilight, was painted in 1859. Millet sold it in 1890 for $160. After passing through various hands it was purchased in 1890 for $150,000.

Science Will Reveal Treasures of Earth

The possibility of finding gold in the earth by wireless is foreshadowed by Sir Robert N. Kotze, the well-known mining engineer.

Sir Robert declares that in the future—say, 100 or 200 years hence—the science of geology will reveal the geology of the earth to a depth of a mile.

He believes that methods will be devised whereby geologists will be able to peep into the crust of the earth. They had already succeeded in transmitting speech underground by wireless, which meant that when wireless waves were used the crust of the earth was transparent.

Sir Robert suggests that an apparatus using such waves might be devised which could see into the earth, and what would be "opaque" would be ore deposits, and with a refinement of this principle the future geological prospector could determine the nature and the size of the deposits.—London Answers.

MANY SNAKES THAT ARE MAN'S FRIENDS

Useful in Destroying Predatory Rodents.

On the walls in the "front office" of a little country newspaper in Indiana there used to hang a collection of trophies and curios from many lands. Among them was the skin of a diamond rattlesnake with the rattles attached. Seldom was there a word of appreciation of the beautiful coloring and the exquisite markings of the skin. Fear and hatred of snakes seem to be inherent in mankind, a writer in the Indianapolis News comments. And yet there are several kinds of harmless snakes which are useful in that they destroy great numbers of predatory rodents. One of them is the king snake, so called because of its courage, its strength and its fearlessness. There are seven species of the king snake in the United States. So fearless is it that it will capture and devour other kinds of snakes much larger than itself, including the rattlers, to the venom of which it seems to be immune. It eats rats, mice, lizards, and birds, but not toads. The corn snake, so called because it frequents fields of growing corn in quest of rodents; the pilot snake and the fox snake are also allies of the farmer. Because of their habit of burning barns and stables two or three different species have been called house snakes. They consume large numbers of rats and mice, and it must be confessed, an occasional young chicken and eggs, as well, but the good they do doubtless overbalances the harm. The so-called milk snake does not steal milk from cows ordinary to an old-time fallacy. In reality this snake shows no liking for milk. It frequents the cow stable for the mice and rats it finds there. Other beneficial snakes are the chicken and the gopher snakes, the latter sometimes known as the black snake. The blue racer, like all the other racers, is an athlete. It is quick in movement, climbs well and swims rapidly. It is harmless and is a great destroyer of moles and mice. Many of the water snakes are harmless, but as they live on toads, frogs and fish they are not especially beneficial to mankind. The garter snake, the most common and the most prolific of all the harmless snakes found in the United States, is really of doubtful benefit to the farmer. It subsists on cold-blooded creatures, toads, frogs and fishworms. By devouring toads it destroys one of man's best agencies in his fight against insect pests.

Care of Home-Grown Seeds Is Important

Correct Labeling and Storage Are Essential.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The correct labeling and proper storage of home-grown seeds are of vital importance if the best yields are to be obtained. Seeds of satisfactory quality when harvested often, through neglect, are worthless at planting time. Cloth bags are the best containers for large seeds such as peas, beans, and corn and for large quantities of small seeds. For smaller lots ordinary letter envelopes, either home-made or purchased, if gummed to close completely, are satisfactory.

Every container should be labeled to show the kind and variety of seed, the exact date when harvested, and the place where grown. For the cloth bags, in addition to the label on the outside, a slip of paper bearing the above information should be inserted with the seed.

Many seeds, especially beans, corn, and lettuce, are subject to injury by a number of insects, most of which may be destroyed by fumigation with carbon disulphid. This liquid can be purchased in tin cans at drug stores. Carbon disulphid, when exposed to the air, as when poured out into a dish, produces a foul-smelling gas that is heavier than air. Therefore, in fumigating seeds it is necessary to place the liquid in a receptacle above the seeds in order that the gas formed by evaporation may sink into them and reach every part of the container. A tight tin pail, box, or barrel makes an excellent container for fumigating seeds. For a tight barrel full of seeds one-half cupful of carbon disulphid is sufficient. For smaller containers a proportionate quantity should be used. Immediately after the fumigation has been started the container should be covered with several thicknesses of heavy paper, or other tight cover, and allowed to remain covered from one to two days. A longer fumigation in tin pails is apt to injure the germinating power of the seeds. Seeds to be fumigated should be dry.

Carbon-disulphid gas is highly inflammable. Therefore, no lights or fire of any sort should be allowed near while fumigation is in progress, or an explosion may occur. The foul odor of the gas disappears after the seeds have been aired for several days.

After the seeds have been packeted a suitable place should be found for storing them. Cellars are too moist, attics usually are too hot, but a second-story room ordinarily is an ideal place providing the temperature does not fall below freezing and the seeds are dry when stored.

Seed can be protected from mice if kept in tin boxes or mouse-proof wooden boxes, or if suspended in cloth bags.

Plan to Reduce Expense by Employing Farm Power

That farm power and labor cost too much is the conclusion reached by agricultural engineers of the Pennsylvania State college. Under the leadership of R. U. Blasingame, head of the college farm machinery department, part of the 1,800 acres of college farm land will be devoted to an experiment to reduce these costs.

So far as is known the Pennsylvania State college is the first agricultural experiment station to put aside part of its farm for power farming experiments with a research engineer devoting full time to the work. H. B. Josephson, a graduate of Saskatchewan university and the Iowa State college, is in active charge. A four-year rotation of corn, oats, wheat and hay will be used in the experiments.

"With power and labor constituting 65 per cent of the cost of producing corn crops, we felt that some means should be employed to decrease this burden," says Blasingame. "Figures collected on 116 farms in Lancaster county in 1923 gave that average. Interest, depreciation, taxes, insurance, seed, fertilizer, marketing, and profit composed the other 35 per cent." It is hoped that a substantial reduction will be obtained by means of the plans used in the experiments.

FARM NOTES

A self-feeder for hens will prove profitable.

The only stock that should be abundantly watered is live stock.

Give the rhubarb bed a liberal application of barnyard manure this fall.

Plow oat and corn land now. Every acre plowed this fall means one less to plow next spring.

Egg production from home is dependent not only upon the ability of the hens to lay eggs, but upon an abundant supply of the kind of food out of which eggs can be produced.

While picking fruit the grower should observe what kinds of insects are bothering the trees. During the winter plans and preparations can be made to resist their attacks next year.

Artificial light may be used on late-hatched pullets, permitting them to finish their growth. A 12-hour day is all that should be given until they are well developed. After that 13 hours of light may be safely used.

BLIZZARD

In Rocky Mountain Region the Worst of Year.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 15.—(UP.)—After the worst blizzard of the year, a bright sun was shining today in the Rocky Mountain region.

The heaviest snow was in the northern part, about 15 inches being reported in Wyoming and tapering off to a few inches in the southern part of Colorado.

The temperature before sunrise today was five degrees above zero, but the temperature was rapidly rising.

Three boys ranging in age from 8 to 11 years and Chester Samuelson, with whom they went hunting Sunday and were missing Sunday night and all day Monday, were located last night safely in a ranch house.

Samuelson walked several miles yesterday to a telephone and notified the children's parents here of their safety.

The automobile driven by Samuelson became stalled in a drift and after a battle-through drifts with the three boys, he reached the ranch house.

Farmers and road crews were busy today clearing roads, many of which are still impassable.

WORLD'S MOST AMAZING RIVER

The Amazon is the king of streams. From first to last it receives over 1,220 tributaries, of which more than 100 are large-sized rivers, and rise so far apart and have their floods and ebbs at such different seasons, that the Amazon is at about the same height the year round.

At some points on its lower course one bank is invisible from the other. The beholder seems to be looking on a great yellow sea of fresh water.

Its mouth, including that of the Para, is 180 miles in width, and it is navigable for large-sized ocean steamers for 1,000 miles from the sea; and so vast is the flood that the ocean is tinged yellow for 400 miles from the coast of Brazil.

Country's Record Bad

The National Safety council says that the United States leads other countries in deaths due to accidents by at least 200 per cent. Here the rate for accidental deaths is 76.3 per 100,000 population; in England it is 33 per 100,000; in Canada 54 per 100,000.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. BANDIT GANG OF MIXED SEX

Toledo, Dec. 15.—(UP.)—Fulton and Lucas county authorities were making a concerted hunt today for three women and two men, members of a bandit gang, who broke into the William and Stephen Godden farm house near Delta, beat the Goddens and obtained only $6.

The Goddens, both bachelors, said the women aided in binding them and when they resisted, struck them with pistol butts. The only clew to the identity of the maulers is a wrist watch dropped by one of the women. It bears the initials H. D. R.

The bandits spent more than two hours in the farm house, ransacking every crevice and possible hiding place for the "fortune" the Goddens were credited with possessing. Stories have been circulated in the district that the Goddens had amassed a fortune and concealed it in their home.

While searching the house, the bandits exchanged banter, joking about what they would do if they found a million dollars. William Godden told authorities.

NEW COUNTERFEITS

Cleveland, Dec. 16.—(UP.)—Two new counterfeit bills are in circulation, J. C. Nevin, cashier of the Federal Reserve bank, warned district banks today.

One bill is a $5 United States note, apparently printed with zinc-etched plates without silk threads or imitation fiber.

The other is a $50 note on the Merchants' and Manufacturers' National Bank of Newark, N. J. It is a photographic reproduction on which red and blue ink lines have been traced.

PARIS RIDICULES MANY UNITED STATES LAWS

Say Men Are Elected To Office Not To Enforce Laws, But Manufacture Them.

Paris, Dec. 15.—"In the United States a new law is made almost as often as a baby is born," says the French financial newspaper Les Nouvelles, commenting on the unnecessary law-making craze of the American congress. "The poor old American eagle is helplessly trussed up with rounds and rounds of legal red tape."

"A man is elected to office in the United States not to enforce the laws but to manufacture them. The more he manufactures, the greater his success as a legislator. Who would ever think the modern Americans are descendants of discontented Europeans who, oppressed by laws, fled to a virgin country to breathe the atmosphere of freedom?"

"These days the liberty lovers again cross the ocean but in the opposite direction. Our American guests seek in France what they cannot find at home; they endeavor to escape from the restriction they encounter in America. After all, what are laws? A great race has lived happily with only ten and has certainly prospered since Sinai."

Aunt Jane's Parrot

By CLARA DELAFIELD

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

DEAR old Aunt Jane! How well I remember her! How well I can see her now, aunt that she was; a little, gray-haired lady, bustling in her kitchen, always so gentle and kind and soft-spoken! All of us children took our troubles to Aunt Jane. If ever there was any family trouble dear old Aunt Jane poured oil upon the troubled waters. No one ever saw Aunt Jane angry. No one ever knew her do or say an unkind thing.

Dear Aunt Jane, with her fondness for animals! I remember when she had all us children visiting her that summer, how suddenly she decided that she would like a parrot for a pet. Of course everybody was eager to get her one. We went to an animal shop near the docks and bought an African gray parrot, a good talker. Aunt Jane said she wanted a good talker.

She kept the bird in her room and it was a real companion to her. Mary paid her a visit a little later—everybody used always to be visiting Aunt Jane—and came back with the dreadful news.

What do you think? The parrot seemed to have been owned by a sailor, and it used—oh, the most dreadful language Aunt Jane was so upset, she had to get rid of it. The best feature of this distressing affair was that Aunt Jane didn't know what most of the words meant. But she understood one of them—no, two. Both began with "d."

Well, there was no help for it. The parrot had to go. It was simply corrupting dear old Aunt Jane's mind, and none of us could have permitted that.

Mary got Aunt Jane another parrot at another animal shop, and the old parrot was sent away, with many tears. I don't know where it went, but I think it was sold back to the original shop, and probably went eventually to another sailor with a taste for strong language. The new parrot was a beauty, Mary said—one of the green kind with a yellow collar, and Aunt Jane was so pleased with it that she almost forgot her sorrow in the loss of the other one.

Roger and Dolly went to stay with Aunt Mary the following spring, and what do you think? The new parrot was even worse than the old one. Aunt Jane was perfectly miserable about it. She had to keep it in the cellar, she said, where the neighbors wouldn't hear it. If you went near it it saluted you with the most hideous abuse. Polly said—but then, never mind about that. It was pretty bad, and it had Aunt Jane so terrorized that she was simply afraid to take it back to the shop, the way it shouted in the street.

Roger covered it up and took it away and did something with it—I never asked him what; and as Aunt Jane was still crazy about parrots, and Roger got her another, a young one, positively guaranteed to have no knowledge of the English language. Roger was sure that everything would be all right then, and Aunt Jane thanked him with tears in her eyes.

Dear Aunt Jane! How sweet she was all through her troubles!

I hadn't been down to see Aunt Jane for months. I kept writing, suggesting a visit, but some of the other nephews and nieces were always staying there, and as her house was so small there was never any room for me. Aunt Jane seemed to spend all her time cooking for us boys and girls and entertaining us. At last, however, she had a free week, and I went to see her.

In the living room was the new parrot. The moment I entered it saluted me with a flow of language that would positively have done discredit to a bargee.

"Aunt Jane" I cried in amazement. Aunt Jane wrung her hands. "Oh, my dear, I meant to put Polly downstairs before you came. It's so terrible, isn't it! I—I'm getting to know what some of the words mean, too! Oh, why should I be doomed to have such parrots?"

Suddenly a light came to me. I grasped her firmly by the hand. "Aunt Jane," I cried, "you taught him that—all of them!"

For a moment Aunt Jane looked frightened, then a defiant look came on her face. "Well, what if I did, Elizabeth?" she demanded calmly.

"Good gracious, Aunt Jane, it isn't like you! I never heard you say words like those!"

"No, my dear," answered Aunt Jane cynically, "those are the words I've always wanted to say when I've been cooking for the whole family all day long. It's—it's sort of comforting to have a parrot to say them."

Hotel Noted for Service.

"Hang it, boy!" exclaimed the tenderfoot from the East as the bell-boy for a Texas hotel came bounding in on him without knocking, "haven't you got any manners about you?"

"Didn't you ring?" asked the boy.

"Of course I rang."

"Didn't you ring three times?"

"It may have been three, as I was in a hurry for ice water, but that doesn't excuse you for bursting in the door."

"Beg pardon," replied the boy, as he backed out, "but you ought to read the bell card. It's one ring for the porter, two for the bellboy and three for a gun, and when a guest rings for a gun in this hotel the orders are to get it to him before the other fellow can beg his pardon!"—Exchange.

YOUNG WOMAN HAD ROMANCE SHATTERED

Mrs. Margaret Trimble
Eloped to West Virginia—
Lover Fined Fifty Dollars.

A romance, enacted in the last few weeks by the 17 year old Mrs. Margaret Robinson Trimble, of Columbus, formerly of Mt. Sterling, came to light in the juvenile court of Franklin county.

The other corners of her triangular escapade were occupied by her 19 year old husband, Eugene P. Trimble, of Mt. Sterling, to whom she was married at Newport, Kentucky, December 4, and her lover, William Millhone, of Cambridge.

The young woman had two beaux and was undecided as to which one she loved best. One of her admirers, William Millhone, undertook to and did elope with the girl to Parkersburg, West Virginia, last week where they were refused a license on the ground of being non-residents. They returned to Columbus, where Millhone discovered the fact that the girl had been married to his rival, Eugene Trimble, in Newport, Kentucky.

Millhone was placed under arrest on the charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. In the juvenile court of Franklin county he was found guilty by Judge Bostwick and was fined $50.

New Religions in Russia

In Kobryn, Poland, and in neighboring localities a new religious movement is developing among the Jews. They are said to be breaking away from the orthodox Jewish church and are being baptized as Protestants. Long curls are being cut off and black robes are being exchanged for European dress. Last month 142 Jews, in Kobryn, were baptized as Protestants. Some observers speak of it as a mass desertion from the Jewish faith. Another movement is in the form of a new religion, which resembles communism, but is more like a free-thinking sect. Many members of this sect receive liberal funds from America. Both ideas seem to have come from over the Russian frontier. In both Russia and eastern Poland Baptists are making converts, mostly among Ukrainians and White Russians. In Yugo-Slavia a new and strange sect was discovered recently. It was headed by a German, Otto Webb. Gendarmes arrested Webb and his eight converts. He was teaching resistance to compulsory military service, and refusal to use arms. Pacifism the Serbs look upon with deep suspicion.

Plants Useful During War

Among the ingenious uses to which plants were put during the World war were: Sphagnum moss, dressing for wounds; charcoal from fruit pits used for gas masks; birch and willow pulp, used as a substitute for cotton and the nettle for making textiles; meal obtained from clover, horse chestnuts, oats, Indian corn, barley, beans, peas and buckwheat, used in place of flour; roasted barley and oats and roasted acorns and beech-nuts, substitute for coffee; in Germany eventually a substitute for coffee was made from carrots and yellow turnips; bloom of the Linden tree mixed with beech buds was found to make an excellent beverage; roasted peas and oats, a substitute for cocoa.

Summer Ice 3 Feet Thick Forms in Adirondacks

Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Water in the crevices of Indian pass has formed ice more than two feet thick, according to Albert Tebeau, forest ranger.

Tebeau made a detailed report of this unusual condition when he visited the offices of District Forest Ranger James H. Hopkins here.

The discovery, according to Tebeau, was made when he was with a party of workmen repairing the telephone lines at a fire-observation station near Indian pass. A large object, at first believed to be a stone, fell near the workmen. When the moss was removed it was found to be ice. Tebeau then sealed the rocks and found ice in almost every crevice. Some of it, he declared, was three feet thick. Conservation officials say this is the first time ice has formed in the Adirondacks in July.

Resort to Caves

Tokyo.—Reports from Seoul, Korea, state that more than 3,000 residents of that place are dwelling in caves just as their ancestors did in a primitive age. It is believed that most of these cave-dwellers are members of the poverty-stricken, unemployed class.

Ananias Club

"I'm tired of freezing," remarked the flapper to her mother, "and I wish you would hunt me up that old pair of woolen leggings you said you had in the trunk."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Time Is Here

Perhaps wise old Mother Nature decided to make our girls, most of them at least, slightly knock-kneed because she foresaw a time, viz., the present, when a little friction as they walked around would be badly needed to supply warmth and keep up the circulation.—Ohio State Journal.

Waterproofing Fabrics

Fabrics are now waterproofed by plating with a thin coat of rubber, the process much resembling the ordinary electroplating of metals. The process is said to simplify the waterproofing of garments to a great degree.

A TREMENDOUS PRICE REDUCTION

On January seventh, nineteen twenty-six, Dodge Brothers Incorporated, will announce a tremendous reduction in the prices of their complete line of motor cars.

These reductions will apply on all cars bought after midnight December fifteenth, nineteen twenty-five.

When the new prices are made known on January seventh the full amount of the reduction will be immediately refunded to all purchasers since December fifteenth.

These revolutionary reductions are made possible by a recently completed ten million dollar expansion program---new buildings and equipment that will nearly double the capacity of Dodge Brothers factories in nineteen twenty-six.

There is no change in the policy upon which Dodge Brothers established their leadership eleven years ago---the policy of constant improvment without yearly models.

AMUSEMENTS

The James Cruze-Paramount production, "Welcome Home," which opened at the Metropolitan theater yesterday, is a nice, smooth, natural piece—no sex or triangle stuff—just a study of the little problems of daily life at times intensified to near tragedy, trailing into a humor as whimsical and impersonal as life, with very little reason and not much rhyme—just an effort to add a little more to the gaiety of this sad world. "Welcome Home" was adapted for the screen by Walter Woods and F. McGrew Willis from a stage play by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman. Featured in the principal roles are Lois Wilson, Warner Baxter and Luke Cosgrave.

Cosgrave has the role of an old widower who comes to the city to live with his married son and daughter-in-law. He does not realize it, but with his arrival everything in the house starts to go wrong. The maid leaves when she is asked to give up her room to the old fellow. Everything old man Prouty turns his hand to ends disastrously.

Finally Miss Wilson, playing Nettie Prouty, can stand it no longer, and she tells Fred Baxter that he will have to make a choice between her and his father. Both of them cannot remain under the same roof. There is the usual family quarrel, followed by the usual declaration of peace.

The old gent gets it into his head that he will be far more free at a Home where he has many cronies. So he packs his bag and leaves and quiet once more holds sway in the Prouty household.

After "The Goose Hangs High" there isn't a doubt about the interest and heart appeal Cruze can crowd into a story—and here's a screen version of a popular stage play by the author of "So Big" and the man who, with Marc Connelly, wrote "Merton of the Movies" and "The Beggar on Horseback."

Appearing in the cast of "Welcome Home" are such well known names as Ben Hendricks, Jr., Josephine Crowell and Adele Watson.

CONFESSED TO KILLING MAN SIX YEARS AGO

Toledo, O., Dec. 16, (UP). — The murder of Siegfried Gross, Toledo junk dealer, who was shot to death six years ago by hijackers who robbed him of 24 cases of whisky, has been solved by the arrest of three men, police announced today.

The men are John Marcus, alias "Jew John" who is under arrest in Indianapolis; Harry Stough and Ernest Miller.

Stough and Miller confessed they killed Gross and implicated Miller, who appeared in Indianapolis as a witness in the Jack Daniels distillery case according to police.

Science Will Reveal Treasures of Earth

The possibility of finding gold in the earth by wireless is foreshadowed by Sir Robert N. Kofze, the well-known mining engineer.

Sir Robert declares that in the future—say, 100 or 200 years hence—the science of geology will reveal the geology of the earth to a depth of a mile.

He believes that methods will be devised whereby geologists will be able to peep into the crust of the earth. They had already succeeded in transmitting speech underground by wireless, which meant that when wireless waves were used the crust of the earth was transparent.

Sir Robert suggests that an apparatus using such waves might be devised which could see into the earth, and what would be "opaque" would be ore deposits, and with a refinement of this principle the future geological prospector could determine the nature and the size of the deposits.—London Answers.

MANY SNAKES THAT ARE MAN'S FRIENDS

Useful in Destroying Predatory Rodents.

On the walls in the "front office" of a little country newspaper in Indiana there used to hang a collection of trophies and curios from many lands. Among them was the skin of a diamond rattlesnake with the rattles attached. Scarcely was there a word of appreciation of the beautiful coloring and the exquisite markings of the skin. Fear and hatred of snakes seem to be inherent in mankind, a writer in the Indianapolis News comments. And yet there are several kinds of harmless snakes which are useful in that they destroy great numbers of predatory rodents. One of them is the king snake, so called because of its courage, its strength and its fearlessness. There are seven species of the king snake in the United States. So fearless is it that it will capture and devour other kinds of snakes much larger than itself, including the rattlers, to the venom of which it seems to be immune. It eats rats, mice, lizards, and birds, but not toads. The corn snake, so called because it frequents fields of growing corn in quest of rodents; the pilot snake and the fox snake are also allies of the farmer. Because of their habit of burning barns and stables two or three different species have been called house snakes. They consume large numbers of rats and mice, and it must be confessed, an occasional young chicken and eggs, as well, but the good they do doubtless overbalances the harm. The so-called milk snake does not steal milk from cows outweigh to an old-time fallacy. In captivity this snake shows no liking for milk. It frequents the cow stable or the mice and rats it finds there. Other beneficial snakes are the chicken and the golden snakes, the latter sometimes known as the black snake. The blue racer, like all the other racers, is an athlete. It is quick in movement, climbs well and swims rapidly. It is harmless and is a great destroyer of moles and mice. Many of the water snakes are harmless, but as they live on toads, frogs and fish they are not especially beneficial to mankind. The garter snake, the most common and the most prolific of all the harmless snakes found in the United States, is really of doubtful benefit to the farmer. It subsists on cold-blooded creatures, toads, frogs and fishworms. By devouring toads it destroys one of man's best agencies in his fight against insect pests.

Christmas FOR THE HOME Suggestions

WHAT PRICE THE GLORY OF GIVING

THERE are gifts that please for a moment—an hour—or a day—its mellow beauty—a beauty not only of warm associations.

Years come and go—marked by Merry Christmas and Happy New Years—anniversaries and home festivals—and thru it all—gathering undying memories—the gift furniture becomes a part of the family life, enriched by the occasion of its use. This then is surely the perfect gift. Given once it carries for all time its message of friendship and love. While you have been thinking and planning and deciding things for Christmas giving—so have we! And now we are ready for you!—with the smartest and loveliest and most giftable selections of small furnishings, decorative objects and objects, and gift furniture for within the home.

Perhaps the bedroom suite above, with its quaint four poster, is the very gift to make this the merriest kind of Christmas for someone.

GIVE YOUR FAMILY ..Furniture..

Let Furniture Carry Your Message of Christmas Cheer Down Through the Years.
A Gift From the Family to the Home

Instead of buying a number of small gifts, why not combine your funds and buy a gift for the whole family. A gift from the family to the home! It may be a Living Room Suit or a Dining Room Suit, something all can enjoy. Furniture will last for years giving the whole family many pleasant, happy memories. "Let Your Christmas Gifts This Year Be Furniture."

Care of Home-Grown Seeds Is Important

Correct Labeling and Storage Are Essential.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The correct labeling and proper storage of home-grown seeds are of vital importance if the best yields are to be obtained. Seeds of satisfactory quality when harvested often, through neglect, are worthless at planting time. Cloth bags are the best containers for large seeds such as peas, beans, and corn and for large quantities of small seeds. For smaller lots ordinary letter envelopes, either home-made or purchased, if gummed to close completely, are satisfactory.

Every container should be labeled to show the kind and variety of seed, the exact date when harvested, and the place where grown. For the cloth bags, in addition to the label on the outside, a slip of paper bearing the above information should be inserted with the seed.

Many seeds, especially beans, corn, and lettuce, are subject to injury by a number of insects, most of which may be destroyed by fumigation with carbon disulphid. This liquid can be purchased in tin cans at drug stores. Carbon disulphid, when exposed to the air, as when poured out into a dish, produces a foul-smelling gas that is heavier than air. Therefore, in fumigating seeds it is necessary to place the liquid in a receptacle above the seeds in order that the gas formed by evaporation may sink into them and reach every part of the container. A tight tin pail, box, or barrel makes an excellent container for fumigating seeds. For a tight barrel full of seeds one-half cupful of carbon disulphid is sufficient. For smaller containers a proportionate quantity should be used. Immediately after the fumigation has been started the container should be covered with several thicknesses of heavy paper, or other tight cover, and allowed to remain covered from one to two days. A longer fumigation in tin pails is apt to injure the germinating power of the seeds. Seeds to be fumigated should be dry.

Carbon-disulphid gas is highly inflammable. Therefore, no lights or fire of any sort should be allowed near while fumigation is in progress, or an explosion may occur. The foul odor of the gas disappears after the seeds have been aired for several days.

After the seeds have been packed in a suitable place should be found for storing them. Cellars are too moist, attics usually are too hot, but a second-story room ordinarily is an ideal place providing the temperature does not fall below freezing and the seeds are dry when stored.

Seed can be protected from mice if kept in tin boxes or mouse-proof wooden boxes, or if suspended in cloth bags.

Plan to Reduce Expense by Employing Farm Power

That farm power and labor cost too much is the conclusion reached by agricultural engineers of the Pennsylvania State college. Under the leadership of R. U. Blasingame, head of the college farm machinery department, part of the 1,800 acres of college farm land will be devoted to an experiment to reduce these costs.

So far as is known the Pennsylvania State college is the first agricultural experiment station to put aside part of its farm for power farming experiments with a research engineer devoting full time to the work. H. B. Josephson, a graduate of Saskatchewan university and the Iowa State college, is in active charge. A four-year rotation of corn, oats, wheat and hay will be used in the experiments.

"With power and labor constituting 65 per cent of the cost of producing corn crops, we felt that some means should be employed to decrease this burden," says Blasingame. "Figures collected on 116 farms in Lancaster county in 1923 gave that average. Interest, depreciation, taxes, insurance, seed, fertilizer, marketing, and profit composed the other 35 per cent." It is hoped that a substantial reduction will be obtained by means of the plans used in the experiments.

FARM NOTES

A self-feeder for hens will prove profitable.

The only stock that should be abundantly watered is live stock.

Give the rhubarb bed a liberal application of barnyard manure this fall.

Plow oat and corn land now. Every acre plowed this fall means one less to plow next spring.

Egg production from home is dependent not only upon the ability of the hens to lay eggs, but upon an abundant supply of the kind of food out of which eggs can be produced.

While picking fruit the grower should observe what kinds of insects are bothering the trees. During the winter plans and preparations can be made to resist their attacks next year.

Artificial light may be used on late-hatched pullets, permitting them to finish their growth. A 12-hour day is all that should be given until they are well developed. After that 13 hours of light may be safely used.

BLIZZARD

In Rocky Mountain Region the Worst of Year.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 15.—(UP.)—After the worst blizzard of the year, a bright sun was shining today in the Rocky Mountain region.

The heaviest snow was in the northern part, about 15 inches being reported in Wyoming and tapering off to a few inches in the southern part of Colorado.

The temperature before sunrise today was five degrees above zero, but the temperature was rapidly rising.

Three boys ranging in age from 8 to 11 years and Chester Samuelson, with whom they went hunting Sunday and were missing Sunday night and all day Monday, were located last night safely in a ranch house.

Samuelson walked several miles yesterday to a telephone and notified the children's parents here of their safety.

The automobile driven by Samuelson became stalled in a drift and after a battle-through drifts with the three boys, he reached the ranch house.

Farmers and road crews were busy today clearing roads, many of which are still impassable.

WORLD'S MOST AMAZING RIVER

The Amazon is the king of streams. From first to last it receives over 1,220 tributaries, of which more than 100 are large-sized rivers, and rise so far apart and have their floods and ebbs at such different seasons, that the Amazon is at about the same height the year round.

At some points on its lower course one bank is invisible from the other. The beholder seems to be looking on a great yellow sea of fresh water.

Its mouth, including that of the Para, is 180 miles in width, and it is navigable for large-sized ocean steamers for 1,000 miles from the sea; and so vast is the flood that the ocean is tinged yellow for 400 miles from the coast of Brazil.

Country's Record Bad

The National Safety council says that the United States leads other countries in deaths due to accidents by at least 200 per cent. Here the rate for accidental deaths is 76.3 per 100,000 population; in England it is 33 per 100,000; in Canada 54 per 100,000.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

BANDIT GANG OF MIXED SEX

Toledo, Dec. 15.—(UP.)—Fulton and Lucas county authorities were making a concerted hunt today for three women and two men, members of a bandit gang, who broke into the William and Stephen Godden farm house near Delta, beat the Goddens and obtained only $6.

The Goddens, both bachelors, said the women aided in binding them and when they resisted, struck them with pistol butts. The only clue to the identity of the maulers is a wrist watch dropped by one of the women. It bears the initials H. D. R.

The bandits spent more than two hours in the farm house, ransacking every crevice and possible hiding place for the "fortune" the Goddens were credited with possessing. Stories have been circulated in the district that the Goddens had amassed a fortune and concealed it in their home.

While searching the house, the bandits exchanged banter, joking about what they would do if they found a million dollars, William Godden told authorities.

NEW COUNTERFEITS

Cleveland, Dec. 16.—(UP.)—Two new counterfeit bills are in circulation, J. C. Nevin, cashier of the Federal Reserve bank, warned district banks today.

One bill is a $5 United States note, apparently printed with zinc-etched plates without silk threads or imitation fiber. The other is a $50 note on the Merchants' and Manufacturers' National Bank of Newark, N. J. It is a photographic reproduction on which red and blue ink lines have been traced.

PARIS RIDICULES MANY UNITED STATES LAWS

Say Men Are Elected To Office
Not To Enforce Laws, But Manufacture Them.

Paris, Dec. 15.—"In the United States a new law is made almost as often as a baby is born," says the French financial newspaper Les Nouvelles, commenting on the unnecessary law-making craze of the American congress. "The poor old American eagle is helplessly trussed up with rounds and rounds of legal red tape."

"A man is elected to office in the United States not to enforce the laws but to manufacture them. The more he manufactures, the greater his success as a legislator. Who would ever think the modern Americans are descendants of discontented Europeans who, oppressed by laws, fled to a virgin country to breathe the atmosphere of freedom?"

Aunt Jane's Parrot

By CLARA DELAFIELD
(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

DEAR old Aunt Jane! How well I remember her! How well I can see her now, saint that she was; a little, gray-haired lady, bustling in her kitchen, always so gentle and kind and soft-spoken! All of us children took our troubles to Aunt Jane. If ever there was any family trouble dear old Aunt Jane poured oil upon the troubled waters. No one ever saw Aunt Jane angry. No one ever knew her do or say an unkind thing.

Dear Aunt Jane, with her fondness for animals! I remember when she had all us children visiting her that summer, how suddenly she decided that she would like a parrot for a pet. Of course everybody was eager to get her one. We went to an animal shop near the docks and bought an African gray parrot, a good talker. Aunt Jane said she wanted a good talker.

She kept the bird in her room and it was a real companion to her. Mary paid her a visit a little later—everybody used always to be visiting Aunt Jane—and came back with the dreadful news.

What do you think? The parrot seemed to have been owned by a sailor, and it used—oh, the most dreadful language Aunt Jane was so upset, she had to get rid of it. The best feature of this distressing affair was that Aunt Jane didn't know what most of the words meant. But she understood one of them—no, two. Both began with "d."

Well, there was no help for it. The parrot had to go. It was simply corrupting dear old Aunt Jane's mind, and none of us could have permitted that.

Mary got Aunt Jane another parrot at another animal shop, and the old parrot was sent away, with many tears. I don't know where it went, but I think it was sold back to the original shop, and probably went eventually to another sailor with a taste for strong language. The new parrot was a beauty, Mary said—one of the green kind with a yellow collar, and Aunt Jane was so pleased with it that she almost forgot her sorrow in the loss of the other one.

Roger and Dolly went to stay with Aunt Mary the following spring, and what do you think? The new parrot was even worse than the old one. Aunt Jane was perfectly miserable about it. She had to keep it in the cellar, she said, where the neighbors wouldn't hear it. If you went near it it saluted you with the most hideous abuse. Polly said—but then, never mind about that. It was pretty bad, and it had Aunt Jane so terrorized that she was simply afraid to take it back to the shop, the way it shouted in the street.

Roger covered it up and took it away and did something with it—I never asked him what; and as Aunt Jane was still crazy about parrots, and Roger got her another, a young one, positively guaranteed to have no knowledge of the English language. Roger was sure that everything would be all right then, and Aunt Jane thanked him with tears in her eyes.

Dear Aunt Jane! How sweet she was all through her troubles!

I hadn't been down to see Aunt Jane for months. I kept writing, suggesting a visit, but some of the other nephews and nieces were always staying there, and as her house was so small there was never any room for me. Aunt Jane seemed to spend all her time cooking for us boys and girls and entertaining us. At last, however, she had a free week, and I went to see her.

In the living room was the new parrot. The moment I entered it saluted me with a flow of language that would positively have done discredit to a bargee.

"Aunt Jane" I cried in amazement. Aunt Jane wrung her hands. "Oh, my dear, I meant to put Polly downstairs before you came. It's so terrible, isn't it! I—I'm getting to know what some of the words mean, too! Oh, why should I be doomed to have such parrots?"

Suddenly a light came to me. I grasped her firmly by the hand. "Aunt Jane," I cried, "you taught him that—all of them!"

For a moment Aunt Jane looked frightened, then a defiant look came on her face. "Well, what if I did, Elizabeth?" she demanded calmly.

"Good gracious, Aunt Jane, it isn't like you! I never heard you say words like those!"

"No, my dear," answered Aunt Jane cynically, "those are the words I've always wanted to say when I've been cooking for the whole family all day long. It's—it's sort of comforting to have a parrot to say them."

Hotel Noted for Service.

"Hang it, boy!" exclaimed the tenderfoot from the East as the bell-boy for a Texas hotel came bounding in on him without knocking, "haven't you got any manners about you?"

"Didn't you ring?" asked the boy.

"Of course I rang."

"Didn't you ring three times?"

"It may have been three, as I was in a hurry for ice water, but that doesn't excuse you for bursting in the door."

"Beg pardon," replied the boy, as he backed out, "but you ought to read the bell card. It's one ring for the porter, two for the bellboy and three for a gun, and when a guest rings for a gun in this hotel the orders are to get it to him before the other fellow can beg his pardon!"—Exchange.

YOUNG WOMAN HAD ROMANCE SHATTERED

Mrs. Margaret Trimble
Eloped to West Virginia--
Lover Fined Fifty Dollars.

A romance, enacted in the last few weeks by the 17 year old Mrs. Margaret Robinson Trimble, of Columbus, formerly of Mt. Sterling, came to light in the juvenile court of Franklin county.

The other corners of her triangular escapade were occupied by her 19 year old husband, Eugene P. Trimble, of Mt. Sterling, to whom she was married at Newport, Kentucky, December 4, and her lover, William Millhone, of Cambridge.

The young woman had two beaux and was undecided as to which one she loved best. One of her admirers, William Millhone, undertook to and did elope with the girl to Parkersburg, West Virginia, last week where they were refused a license on the ground of being non-residents. They returned to Columbus, where Millhone discovered the fact that the girl had been married to his rival, Eugene Trimble, in Newport, Kentucky.

Millhone was placed under arrest on the charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. In the juvenile court of Franklin county he was found guilty by Judge Bostwick and was fined $50.

Toledo—Joseph Luska, 28, was held by police Wednesday after being identified by Miss Louise Washburn as the man who attacked her near Toledo university last Friday morning.

Police said Luska will be examined in an effort to determine whether he was connected with the activities of the Toledo slugger, who clubbed nine women, two of whom were found dead.

And Scarce

Wise is the individual who knows that a thing is going to be unpopular before the flat-footed public jumps all over it.

Once Genteel Toothpick

When toothpicks were first introduced into England from France and Italy centuries ago their use was considered a mark of gentility. To show themselves possessed of such an instrument men of fashion wore them in their hatbands.

SALE POSTPONED.

Queer Companionship

A young fox possessed by an English sportsman has become so tame that it eats from the same dish as the greyhound that captured it.
